At the Zenmyo Plant, which has been operating in Nishio City, Aichi Prefecture since 1998, a biotope has been set up in the factory grounds under a DENSO philosophy known as "Environmental preservation and harmony with society". It was created in the same year that the plant started operating with the desire of restoring a nature in which mountains were excavated and forest trees were cut down and lost when building the factory, to a state that will be treasured by everyone working here. The development started with the purpose of rehabilitating the "satoyama" environment and restoring the habitat of the freshwater fish "ushimotsugo" (dwarf topmouth minnow) that is found in the reservoirs of the surrounding areas.
